Name	Your object's color:

Observing Jupiter

In 1610 Galileo Galilei observed Jupiter with a telescope. He was curious about objects near Jupiter that looked like small spots of light.

This activity is part of the GEMS Space Science Sequence from Lawrence Hall of Science. www.lhsgems.org/CurriculumSequences ©2008 by the Rergents of the University of California. This page may be duplicated for the purpose of presenting this activity.